THE JOKE ON BANKER MORGAN

He Doesn't Want Any More Wedding Gifts with $450 Duties.

Wall Street Smiling Over that Smuggled Bracelet Episode.

The story of a bracelet sent to Miss Juliet Morgan, daughter of Banker J. Pierpont Morgan, in a manner which caused it to be seized by the customs authorities on account of the evident intention of the sender to smuggle it, set all Wall Street to talking today, and fellow bankers and brokers in the street considered it a good joke on the austere millionaire.

Not that they considered the matter of paying $450 duty on a present sent by a friend of any moment to the millionaire, but they all realized how much he abhorred publicity, and especially publicity in a matter of this kind.

When an "Evening World" reporter called at his office this morning Mr. Morgan was not in, but there was an ominous warning on the door, "Do not enter." None of the heads of the firm knew anything about the bracelet transaction.

At the Custom-House Collector Kilbreth said of course he knew about the matter, but he could not understand how it got out. He did not consider it of enough importance to talk about. The same was said by all the other officials, but all united in saying that the facts are as stated.

These are the facts: Some ten days ago a book that arrived at the Post-Office in the Italian mail seemed to the customs inspector there to be suspiciously weak in the middle. The book was well wrapped up, and was addressed to J. Pierpont Morgan.

The inspector opened it, and found a copy of Rev. Henry M. Stanley's sermon, but with enough of the sermon cut out of the center of the book to permit of placing there a small, round object with eight diamonds and eight sapphires.

Mr. Morgan was notified, and told the customs official that the bracelet was from a nobleman in Italy, an old friend of his, and was intended as a wedding present for his daughter Juliet, who is soon to be married.

Mr. Morgan was informed by the C. I. collector that, owing to the peculiar way in which the bracelet was sent, surrounded with all the appearance of intent to smuggle, the bracelet would have to be seized.

Then Banker Morgan began to write letters to the Secretary of the Treasury, with the result that yesterday the Secretary notified Collector Kilbreth that he would release the bracelet to Mr. Morgan when the latter paid the duty of $450 thereon.

Mr. Morgan lost no time in doing this, and yesterday afternoon he gave the cashier at the custom-house the money, and he hoped there were no more wedding presents in the way under the same conditions.

Miss Juliet Morgan, for whom the bracelet was intended, is the second daughter of J. Pierpont Morgan, and has been out in society two seasons. She is fond of dancing and driving and outdoor sports generally. She is to marry William Hamilton on the 12th of next month.

Mr. Hamilton is a great-grandson of Alexander Hamilton, and is Treasurer of the Manhattan Trust Company. He is a well-known clubman and is an enthusiastic horseman.

Accused of Writing a Revolver. Samuel Black, of 122 Riverside street, was held for examination on a charge of disorderly conduct by Justice Hogan in the Essex Street Police Court today. Lawrence Connor, who lives in the same house, was also brought in. The men came in blows yesterday and it is alleged that they had a revolver and threatened to blow the top of Connor's head off.

LAWYER ADLER ACCUSED.

Arrested for Attempted Larceny and False Impersonation.

Alleged Misrepresentations in Trying to Place a Mortgage.

Samuel J. K. Adler, a lawyer, with offices in the Temple Court Building, was arrested by Detective Von Gerichten this morning on a bench warrant charging him with attempted grand larceny and false impersonation. Adler was taken to the District Attorney's office, and then before Recorder Smith in Part I. of the General Sessions, where he pleaded not guilty.

The indictment against Adler alleges that on Dec. 19 he tried to secure from David Keller, a jeweler, of Maiden Lane, a mortgage for $2,000 on the premises 31 East Eighty-second street, for the owner, Jacob E. Solomon. The property, he claimed, was valued at $2,000. It is alleged that it was learned that the property upon which Adler tried to raise the money was located at 35 East Eighty-second street, and was a frame structure, which was already mortgaged for $2,000 and that it belonged to Janet L. Ames.

The second complaint of false impersonation alleges that Adler went to James Murphy, a Commissioner of Deeds, at 11 Nassau street, and represented himself to be Janet L. Ames and had the premises 35 East Eighty-second street, transferred to Mr. Keller.

HAMMERSTEIN WINS.

Edward Ferrero's Suit Against Him is Dismissed.

Judge Freedman, of the Supreme Court, today dismissed the suit of Edward Ferrero to recover $3,000 for alleged violation of contract, from Oscar Hammerstein, the theatrical manager.

Ferrero alleged that Hammerstein had entered into a contract to lease the Knickerbocker above mentioned light opera house to him for the season 1894-5, and that he had paid him $2,000 for the purpose.

Hammerstein, however, had abandoned the project when he learned he could not give the required entertainment under Ferrero's license.

The Associated Press.

HUNTINGTON, N. Y., March 27.—At the mouth of Knox Creek, in Logan County, Edw. Christian (known as a difficulty with Edw. Ferrero, who is a difficulty with Edw. Christian) was on the West Virginia side of the river and the others were on the Kentucky side. Christian was shot twice by the Kentuckians, and his wounds were fatal.

Christian surrendered himself to the New Virginia authorities. Two of the Kentuckians were injured, but not fatally.
